Jubilee Program Enjoyed

Alberta's past lived again on Thursday afternoon when many members of this and neighboring communities gathered in the Irma School auditorium for a Jubilee Programme.

Sixty-two guests, among them men and women who were in the district before there was a school, signed the guest book which will be treasured in the school archives.

After the singing of O Canada, Mr. Gunn gave the address of welcome, pointing out interesting differences between life today and life in pioneer days.

Rev. Inglis said a prayer of thanksgiving for the gifts of past years.

Mrs. Clumstad's class then presented the very popular drill "Ten Little Indians."

Mr. Hill was called upon as chairman of the divisional school board to outline changes in educational organization since the first schools were established in this district.

Mrs. Chase's class recalled the coming of law and order to the West in the drill "Ride of the Red Coats."

Harold Skoogson read Mr. Roughton's story, "We Lit a Fire in Mackenzie's Fireplace," which appeared in the Golden Jubilee Anthology.

This was followed by a pageant, "A Birthday Party for Alberta," presented by the grade seven and eight class.

The high school class under the direction of Mrs. Glasgow, very ably rendered a group of songs saluting peoples who have settled in Alberta.

Rev. Mr. Ashdown offered a prayer for the future.

The programme closed with God Save The Queen and many paused to examine again the large selection of old photographs of early days in Alberta which lined the downstairs corridor.

Southern Sayings

Mrs. Lawrence Johnston and family of Edmonton visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Johnston last week.

Melvin and Bud Dawson were home last week-end and took in Hardisty stampede.

Mrs. S. C. Johnston's Christmas Cactus is busy blooming.

Your scribe has a very prickly kind of a cactus. Have had it for ten years and was greatly surprised last week when two blooms appeared on it. It took a week for them to come out then they only lasted one day.

Albert Jackson, Beverly and boys of Edmonton, were down last Thursday evening, returning Friday morning after visiting at their respective homes.

Wonder if we pass comments on the lovely weather if it will change it. Right in this part of the district we could do with rain.

Next Strawberry Plains W.I. meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Reber's on Tuesday, June 21. Hostesses will be Mrs. Dawson and Mrs. Reber. Roll Call, Exchange of Cookie Recipe, Raffle, Mrs. Dawson.

As of March 1954, an estimated 67,500 full-time students were enrolled in universities and colleges across Canada.

Wedding Bells

COWPER—PYLE

A pretty wedding was solemnized in the Irma United Church on Friday, June 10, when Miss Shirley Pyle, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Pyle, became the bride of Mr. Claude Robert Cowper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cowper of Biggar, Sask.

Rev. H. Inglis officiated at the double ring ceremony in which the bride was given in marriage by her father.

The bride's cocktail-length gown of nylon tulle over ivory satin, was complemented with a matching bolero and overskirt of nylon lace, scalloped in front in redingote style, and trimmed with rainbow sequins. Her finger-tip veil mistled from a tulle of nylon net, satin and pearls.

She wore a two-strand pearl choker with matching earrings, and carried a white prayer-bell garlanded with red and white baby roses and streamers of white satin ribbon dotted with tiny rose buds and lilies of the valley.

Miss Grace Larson was her cousin's bridesmaid and Miss Joyce Cook her maid of honor. Their dresses of nylon lace over tulle in blue and yellow, respectively were identical in style, and complemented with matching boleros and headresses. They carried colonial bouquets of spring flowers.

Little Sandra Guy, was her cousin's flower girl. She wore a frock of blue and pink nylon with a headress of pink roses. She carried a nosegay of spring flowers.

The groom was attended by Mr. James Lawford of Edmonton and Mr. Glenn Pyle, Master of Ceremony.

Mrs. B. Long played the wedding music and Mrs. A. Fleming sang "I'll Walk Beside You" during the signing of the register.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Pyle chose a frock of navy blue alluracel crepe with a bodice of nylon lace over pink sheer. Her accessories were in grey and white and she wore a red corsage.

The reception was held at Gratton View Hotel where 35 guests sat down to the delicious banquet prepared and served by the hotel staff under the direction of Mrs. F. Drewicki. Mr. J. Jackson proposed the toast to the bride to which the groom responded.

The newly-weds' honeymoon tour will include visits to Biggar, Banff and Jasper. They will make their future home in Edmonton.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Archibald were city visitors Friday attending the ceremony at which their daughter Coleen received her nurse's cap.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Currie have the company of their daughter Mary, Mrs. R. Clark, and little daughters from Calgary for two weeks.

The N. Peterson family from Leduc were week-end visitors at the A. C. Archibald home.

The next meeting of Buffalo Coulee W.I. will be held at the home of Mrs. A. C. Archibald on June 23, one week later than usual because of the Consistency Conference at Wainwright on June 16.

We are sorry to hear that Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hinton had their car smashed quite badly near Hardisty at the week-end. Luckily all the passengers escaped without serious injury.

Next Mrs. Jim Tully took in the Air Show at Cold Lake on Air Force Day, June 11.

Mrs. Gerald Scott; Mrs. Comley; Mrs. Geo. Bridgeman; Kincaid; Mrs. W. J. Alma-Mater FUA; Roseberry FUA.

All these organizations and individuals should be given all the help possible by the people in their communities.

Do not feel that you are too old, or too young, or have any other reason not to attend the clinic. Be sure and have a registration card filled in. If you were out, or away when a canvasser called, you can get a card from Mrs. R. C. McFarland. If you do not get a card, watch for clinic dates and come in for your X-Ray anyway.

TOO MUCH OF GOOD THING

The extra pounds carried around by the overweight person can be a detriment to the appearance and a hazard to health since fat people are more susceptible to some of the serious diseases than are the thin folk. Anyone who is more than 10 percent over normal weight should consult a doctor, who may prescribe diet and exercise to reduce the poundage.

INDIAN TRAILS

Overland trails of the Indians, worn deep long before white men came to North America, were remarkable for following the shortest and easiest way possible between various points.

REGINA.—Under leaden skies, with a forty degree temperature driven in by a 20-mile an hour wind, Governor-General Vincent Massey on Monday, May 16, officially opened the Saskatchewan Natural History Museum in Regina, before a small crowd of spectators and invited provincial pioneers.

Promptly at 2:15 p.m. led by a mounted troop of RCMP in scarlet tunics with lances at the car, His Excellency arrived at the Albert Street-College Avenue entrance to the Museum and proceeded to the platform in front of the building. Here the Guard of Honor presented arms and the RCHA band played the Royal Salute while two members of the Provost Corps raised the Governor-General's Standard.

Following the salute the Governor-General inspected the Guard made up of 100 men of the Navy, Army and Air Force and then proceeded to the raised dais for the program of dedication and unveiling, under the chairmanship of J. H. Brockelbank, Saskatchewan Natural Resources minister. Also on the dais were Lt.-Gov. W. J. Patterson, Premier T. C. Douglas and Mr. Justice E. M. Culliton, provincial Jubilee Committee chairman.

In his address, prior to unveiling the inscription on the face of the building, His Excellency offered his sympathy to those in the province to whom the recent rains had brought so much hardship. In referring to the building, he said "Liberty is to cold or static thing. We remember the pioneers who subjected themselves to hard labor, many privations, to give us this land we love and cherish so heartily. They built well. I am proud to see the inner meaning of a jubilee year being observed by the creation of this museum. The celebrations of this anniversary will fade in memory, but this museum will stand forever."

On his way from the dais to the building proper, after the unveiling, the Governor-General stopped to pet a golden retriever dog that had been an interested spectator throughout the proceedings. He was then presented to Fred Bradshaw, the first curator and his wife and Fred Dunk, the second curator and Mrs. Dunk. This group then, led the visitor through the museum, describing as they went the peculiarities of the exhibits and where they were obtained. Finally the Governor-General and his party left the building by the northeast door.

Pictures here indicate, from top to bottom, the mask falling from the inscription on the wall just after His Excellency cut the gold cord supporting it. Lt. Commander K. A. Beesley, RCN (R), guard Commander accompanying the Governor-General on his inspection of the Air Force section of the Honor Guard and J. H. Canada's only camel not feeling well

TORONTO.—Canada may soon be camel-less. Dizzie's in the twilight of his distinguished, albeit melancholy, career.

Dizzie is the only camel in the country, and the star of the High Park zoo here. He has just turned 30, and when you're a camel that means you're over the hump.

Dizzie used to be Jerry. But zookeeper George Steward watched him snubbing around and renamed him "Dismal". Dizzie for short.

Dizzie was born in Hooisick, N.Y., and came here when he was 10. He hasn't shown pleasure or even interest in anything but food since then. He ignores the other animals.

Steward believes his melancholy really set in 1938. A lady came arrived that year and died a few months later. She was the only girl in Dizzie's life. Now she's just a tender memory in his old age.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY— DOC KELLY'S BOY

—By JIM DYGERT

EVER since young Tommy Winters could remember, his mother was always telling him that he should be more like Doc Kelly's boy. He expected to hear it once again when he spotted his mother coming towards the garage.

"So, you've been fishing all day again, Tommy, what's the matter? Don't you appreciate our sending you to school?"

He finished hanging his pole and turned about to defend himself. "Honest, Mom. It's not that. I just get sick of going to school every day. A fellow has to have some kind of fun once in a while."

"I should think Saturday and Sunday would give you enough time? You don't see your father loading about whenever the notion strikes him?"

"But, Mom. You don't understand."

"Oh, yes I do. It's getting to where I can't do anything with you. Son, if only you could be more like Doc Kelly's boy. Now there's a fine, upstanding young lad for you! Never getting into trouble and—"

"Never doing anything," Tommy interrupted. "Just an angel with wings. Everyone would be a whole lot better off if he would use those wings to fly away with."

"Tommy! Don't be so sarcastic. And didn't I teach you better than to break into my conversation like that? Do you think Doc Kelly's boy would do something like that? You bet your life he wouldn't!"

She looked down at her son's clothes for the first time. "Tommy, what did you do? Fall into the creek? Oh, Tommy! You might have drowned. Hurry and get those clothes off before you catch a death of cold. When you are finished, come downstairs. I'm going to heat your supper over."

Sarah was just about half way to the stove when the telephone rang. Miss Twitchell was on the line. "Is Tommy all right?"

"Why?" Sarah inquired.

"Well, I saw him coming down Main St. carrying little Bert Stevens. And, Sarah, both of them were wringing wet and little Bert was crying aloud. He pushed me in! He pushed me in! So, I thought I'd call to let you know what your Tommy has done."

Sarah uttered a faint "Gosh" and hung up. "Now hookey isn't enough," she thought. "Now he's going about pushing six-year-old boys into Bear Creek. So, that is his reason for being wet. Just wait till he comes down."

Tommy came down all washed and ready for supper. He always fixed up a little extra special for supper on Wednesday nights. After all, his mother didn't bake a chocolate cake that night just to please herself.

"You must have had a good time fishing," Sarah said bluntly. "Caught a lot of them. Ma, I gave them to Widow Stevens. Her little boy, Bert, likes fish. In fact, he was down at the creek today trying to catch some himself."

"Son, that's the way I like you to do things. It isn't a bit harder to do the good things. And there are so many good things that need doing."

She gave her words time to sink in. Then she said, "By the way, how's Bert?"

"O.K., Ma. Except that he fell in Bear Creek. But he's O.K. now."

As she looked at the boy, she thought, "So now Tommy is starting to be like me now and then before. He always told me when he got into trouble."

After emptying his plate, Tommy remained at the table waiting for the chocolate cake.

"Get on to bed, Tommy," she commanded coldly, breaking the Wednesday night procedure that had developed into a habit.

"But—the chocolate cake?"

"There is no chocolate cake. Get on to bed!"

She watched her disappointed son walk up the stairs and seated herself in the rocker.

Upon hearing the doorknob ring, Sarah walked to the door. She opened it to find Widow Stevens and Bert.

"Where's Tommy?" Widow Stevens asked excitedly. "I just can't wait to thank him. He saved little Bert's life today. So, son, I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart. You see, Bert's all these things to fly away with and it hadn't have been for you—"

"Aw, Mrs. Stevens, anybody would have done it," Tommy said, attempting to rid himself of the hero brand.

"No, not anybody, Tommy," Widow Stevens said. "There are many things you do that just anybody don't. More than once, Bert and I were hungry when you brought a string of fish to our door. No, not anybody, Tommy."

Tommy and Bert were getting at the chocolate cake when Widow Stevens said, "They are getting to be such good friends. I can't help but keep telling Bert that he should try and grow up and be the kind of boy Tommy is."

Sarah laughed. "That's funny. And I keep telling Tommy that he should try and be more like Doc Kelly's boy."

"Before you tell him that again," Widow Stevens said. "I think you ought to know Tommy just gave Doc Kelly's boy a good beating. My little Bert was pushed into Bear Creek by Doc Kelly's boy."

Hand-me-down shoes

Children's feet grow very quickly—they may change size as often as every two months. When buying Junior's shoes, it is as well to keep this in mind, especially during his first eight years, the time of most rapid growth. Shoes are one piece of wearing apparel that should not be passed down from one child to another—the second wearer may have an entirely different shaped foot from that of the first wearer.

FALSE TEETH

That Loosen

Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered from loose teeth, or when their plates dropped, slipped or wobbled in fear of this happening to you, you can get a new set of false teeth, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plate. This powder is so soft, so they feel more comfortable. Does not hurt your teeth. (See FASTESTEETH at any drug counter.)

A SAD ACCIDENT

Every now and again one hears of a tragedy which makes tears come to his eyes. One of these occurred early this week in the Cardston district. An 11-year-old boy was killed and his sister, 8, was critically injured when a tractor they were riding overturned and pinned them beneath. Following the accident the little girl, suffering head injuries, freed herself and crawled half a mile towards home. She was later found unconscious on the road.

Scholarships and Bursaries

Many young people from this district will be starting a University course, a course at one of the Schools of Agriculture and Home Economics. How many know what financial assistance they may apply for? At my office I have information and application forms for the bursaries and scholarships available for those boys and girls who intend to go to one of the Schools of Agriculture and Home Economics. Those planning to enter University should contact the bursar of the university or the Dean of the faculty they intend to register in.

Hay or Silage

This last few years there has been an increasing interest in silage as a way to put up feed. The trench or bunker type silo seem to be the most suitable in Western Canada as there is less danger of freezing and they are quite easy to fix up to self feed out of. One common question is, "what crops can be used to make silage?" The answer is any crop which will make hay and many others such as thistles and other weeds which would not be suitable for hay. Mixtures of grasses and legumes make the best feed whether they are fed as hay or silage.

Care of Machinery

Now that seeding is over and the first summerfallow operations done, there is a chance to check over machinery. Make sure that the drill and fertilizer attachment are properly cleaned out to prevent rusting and corrosion. If any repairs or adjustments are needed, this is a good time to do them. This is also a good time to check over and fix up the haying machinery before starting to use it. Proper alignment of cutting bar and knife will give a lot better job and be much easier on the mower. If loaders or stackers are to be used, check for worn cables, ropes or chains and replace them now.

SOCIAL CREDIT OBJECTIVES

James A. Smith

The Social Credit Movement throughout Canada is much more than a mere political party. It is a great crusade for great humanitarian reforms. It is quite true that we are in politics and our aim, politically, is to elect a Social Credit government at Ottawa in order that the ultimate objectives of Social Credit can be established for the people.

What are those ultimate objectives? There are two in particular:

First is economic security. With the vast wealth of our Canadian resources and industrial capacity to produce, no Canadian should have any need to worry as to his present or future economic requirements. Canada is able to produce such vast abundances that all Canadians should be able to enjoy the highest standard of living in the world. A realistic approach to the problem of the distribution of our abundances is the crying need of the hour. This can only be done by the proper adjustment of our monetary policy so that adequate purchasing power can be placed in the hands of the people, enabling them to enjoy these goods and services which is their right to enjoy. Social Crediters are the only ones who have this realistic approach and the bold courage to tackle the job.

The Second Social Credit objective is to see that Canadians remain free to enjoy the rich and abundant life that can be theirs. We can advance into a golden age but a wrong move can take us into an age of slavery. Socialism and other forms of political party doctrine might give a measure of security provided Canadians were willing to give up their freedom and fit into the rigid controls required by the planners. Social Crediters claim that a measure of socialist security at the price of freedom is too great a cost for Canadians to pay. Freedom from want and freedom from fear can be obtained by a simple adjustment of monetary policy. But it takes courage to stand up against vested interests and financial powers and fight for such reforms. That is why the Social Credit Movement is such an important and great crusade.

Let it be known that all good citizens who, for twenty years in the past, have begun such a good work, will not turn back now just when they are beginning to realize the fruits of their efforts all over Canada. Social Credit is rolling up strength in every province.

On Monday, June 20, be sure to mark your ballot with an "X" and vote for your Social Credit Candidate —

News Roundup
From EdmontonBy Ken Mason
(Special to The News)

EDMONTON — The June 29 provincial election is shaping up into quite a battle, with all major political parties showing more strength in number of candidates than they have in other recent campaigns.

Unofficial tabulations last week indicated that it will be at least a two-way battle for every one of the province's 60 constituencies and 61 legislature seats. So long as all the candidates file their nomination papers before the deadline on nomination day—Wednesday of this week—it appears likely that there will be no members elected by acclamation.

At the time of writing, at least one candidate had been nominated in each of the ridings held by members of Premier Manning's cabinet in the last legislature. In some of these, the opposition parties have joined forces by naming independents to run against the cabinet ministers.

A two-way battle appears to be developing in the southern riding of Cardston, where the Liberals have named Fenton Webster to run against Hon. E. W. Hinman, minister of municipal affairs and the newest addition to the cabinet. At last reports, none of the other parties planned to contest the seat.

The same applies to the Hard Hills constituency where Hon. Dr. W. W. Cross, minister of health, is being opposed by Liberal candidate W. Stainton. In the Okotoks-High River riding, the Conservatives and Liberals have united to run Ross Ellis as an independent against Hon. Ivan Casey, minister of lands and forests.

Hon. L. C. Halmrast, minister of agriculture, is running for re-election in his riding of Warner in the south, and is being opposed by John L. Evans, a Liberal.

Hon. C. E. Gerhart, provincial secretary-treasurer, is being opposed in the Acadia-Coronation riding by Leonard Reiman, CCF, and Lee Sims, Liberal.

Russell Robertson (L) and Mrs. Karl Karlson (CCF) have been named to run against Hon. A. O. Aalberg, minister of education, in the Alexandra riding, while Hon. Gordon Taylor, minister of highways, runs against Dr. Audley Barclay (L) and Anton Lenzak (L) of the Labor-Progressive (Communist) party in Drumheller riding.

The minister of industries and labor, Hon. Norman A. Willmore, will contest Edson riding against two opposition nominees—Conservative Thomas Booker and Liberal William Switzer. Martin Folstad (CCF) and George Schultz (L) are opposing Hon. R. D. Jorgenson, minister of welfare, in Pembina riding, while Clyde Stauffer (L) and Bert Rear (CCF) are running against Hon. A. J. Hooke, minister of public works, in Rocky Mountain House.

One of the more interesting election battles will be in St. Albert riding, where Hon. Lucien Maynard is seeking re-election. He is opposed by Arthur Sæviert, the Liberal candidate, and Joseph Duseault, independent with CCF backing.

In the 1952 election, Sæviert and Duseault ran against Maynard in the same riding and gave him such strong opposition that during the counting it looked as if he might not be elected.

A major development in the election campaign last week was Premier Manning's announcement that he plans to introduce legislation which would prohibit members of the legislature from borrowing money from provincial treasury branches.

The premier said he will ask the new legislature to amend the present statutes to make it impossible for M.L.A.'s to obtain treasury branch loans. Dealings with treasury branches became an election issue during the last session of the house when Liberal leader J. Harper Prowse suggested that members disqualified themselves by doing business with the branches.

At the time, the premier labelled the suggestion a petty "technicality," and asked why the opposition was questioning a practice which has been going

BILL
IRVINE
Says:

Bill Irvine says: "During the last three years the farmers of Western Canada have, among other things, sent deputations to Ottawa to ask for the following: Floor prices on a parity basis for the domestic market and a guaranteed minimum price for export; producers' Marketing Board; Farmer representation on the Wheat Board, the Board of Grain Commissioners and other boards; a Trade Policy to encourage any country needing our food stuffs to trade with us, such as removing tariff barriers and the acceptance of British pounds in payment thereof; Crop Insurance; specific changes in income tax; Government grants for education; National Health Insurance; support of Co-operatives, etc. The government, with over 100 of a majority has turned a deaf ear to every appeal. Does anyone suppose that another Liberal elected on June 20 would make any difference?"

On the contrary, the election of another Liberal would tell the government that you were perfectly satisfied with things as they are. And as Premier Douglas said in Camrose, "The Cabinet on hearing the news, would just turn over and go back to sleep." The only time the Liberal government has ever really come to life during the last 30 years was when the CCF was strong enough to threaten its power. Is it not worth while to try that again? The greatest weakness of both the Ottawa government and the Alberta government is the size of their majorities. It is to the public interest to reduce those majorities in both cases."

on for 17 years. Now, he says that in the light of the opposition's "misrepresentation" of treasury branch services, the only proper thing to do is make it impossible for any such question to arise again.

All of which, adds to the fun by giving the opposition more ammunition. They say that if it was only a technicality, and if the practice is right and proper, why call an election over it and why change the law to prevent it?

BEHIND THE SCENES—We won't take any bets, but numerous political observers are saying R. Earl Ansley, M.L.A. for Leduc riding for many years, may be back in the Social Credit fold when the new legislature meets, probably in August.

Mr. Ansley was minister of education in the Manning cabinet until he resigned in 1948. Before the 1952 election, he was read out of the party, but ran as an independent Social Credit candidate and was elected. A meeting of the Leduc Social Credit Constituency Association recently voted not to field a candidate, but to support Mr. Ansley again. Mr. Ansley is not a member of the Social Credit League. So the question is, if elected will he be a government supporter. Sources close to the party say yes.

Orvis Kennedy, Social Credit organizer, was asked if Mr. Ansley would be returned to the party's good graces. He smiled and replied: "There are still some things to be settled before that happens."

YOU ARE THE JUDGE!

The Premier Believes...

- (1) That the Opposition must not ask questions.
- (2) That it was alright for Sacred Cabinet Ministers and M.L.A.'s to have business dealings with the Government and borrow in secrecy from branches of the public treasury.
- (3) That the Government's financial business is none of your business.

A Liberal Government Will...

- (1) Set up a permanent public accounts committee, the Chairman of which will be appointed by the Opposition Leader.
- (2) Strictly enforce the laws prohibiting members from having business dealings with the Government.
- (3) Put an end to secrecy in public affairs.

Cash awards over $3,000 for Sask. artists, film-makers

REGINA—Saskatchewan artists and amateur movie filmmakers can contribute to the Province's Golden Jubilee observance and at the same time try for cash awards totalling over $3,000 in new competitions announced by the Saskatchewan Golden Jubilee committee. The competitions will continue until fall, with winners selected by a panel of judges.

The Saskatchewan Art Board is co-operating with the Jubilee Committee in its role as sub-committee for creative activities and is helping to promote the whole new program for drawings, paintings and films. The Regina Film Council, sponsor of annual film competitions that will continue this year, is assisting in the Jubilee film project.

Artists who have lived in Saskatchewan since 1951, and those temporarily out of the Province but whose homes are in Saskatchewan may enter the two art classes. One class is for a set of 10 topographical studies of Saskatchewan in water color, line-out print, pen and ink or black and white brush drawing. Size of each composition must be not less than 18x22, up to 20x24, unmounted.

September 15 deadline
One completed work of the set of 10 must be submitted to the Saskatchewan Arts Board Office at Regina, by September 15, with a rough outline of the other nine works. Cash awards for this class total $1,125.

In the section for paintings each entrant must submit one or two sketches or small paintings on Saskatchewan themes in water-color, gouache or tempera, oil or mixed technique in a size not less than 14x18, up to 18x24. Entries must be received by the Saskatchewan Arts Board by September 15.

On the basis of these submissions the winners will be commissioned to do larger works by November 15. Cash awards of $150 each will be received by the 10 artists commissioned by the judges for finished compositions. There will be six awards of $25 each for sketches or small paintings not chosen for painting-up to larger size.

Winning entries will become the property of the Golden Jubilee Committee for exhibition purposes and possible reproduction.

Movie competitions
In the movie film competitions there is a class for 10 mm color film, not less than 100 feet or more than 400 feet, edited, with prizes of $100, $75 and $50. For 16 mm black and white film, not less than 100 feet or more than 400 feet edited, cash awards are $75, $50 and $25. A prize of $75 is offered for the best experimental film using new and original techniques. At the discretion of the judges a special award of $50 may be given for the best creative film in all classes.

All entries must deal with a Saskatchewan theme and be of use as film material. They must be received at the Golden Jubilee Office, Regina, by October 1. Winning films will become the property of the Golden Jubilee Committee and may be further edited for reprint. Competitors with suitable camera adjustments should use "sound speed" for possible use over TV.

In announcing the competitions Fred McGuinness, executive director of the Saskatchewan Golden Jubilee Committee, said they are part of the Jubilee's objective of promoting projects and activities that will have continuing value for the cultural life of the Province. Full details of the competitions can be obtained from the Jubilee Office in Regina.

WHAT TO DO . . .

When someone swallows poison

Quick work is necessary to save the life of a person who has swallowed poison, says St. John Ambulance.

Every moment's delay means that more of the poison is being absorbed into the system. Call a doctor immediately, tell him briefly what is wrong, and then take steps to get rid of the poison. First of all, don't waste time trying to find out what poison was taken—chances are you wouldn't have the right antidote handy anyway. Try to induce vomiting by tickling the back of the patient's throat with a spoon or two fingers. If this doesn't work give him a tumbler of water containing two tablespoons of salt.

Vomiting, however, should not be induced when the patient is unconscious or when the lips and mouth are burned.

An antidote—one pint of milk is the simplest—should be given next, except when poison is unconscious. If milk is not available, then a pint of water may be given. Water won't neutralize the poison but it does dilute it.

Although each type of poison has its own antidote, milk or water is the best antidote for an untrained person to remember for general use.

Here are four other rules for the treatment of poisoning.

1. Place an unconscious patient in the prone position with the face turned to one side and not resting on a pillow. The prone position also facilitates the start of artificial respiration.
2. Start artificial respiration instantly if the breathing is feeble or unduly slow. Keep it up until a doctor takes charge.
3. Preserve for the doctor any remaining poison and any vomited matter.
4. Do not give any laxative such as castor oil.

Remember, the most important thing to do when someone swallows poison is to summon a doctor as quickly as possible.

Suggestions to ward off 'attackers'

Pound for pound we are no match for mosquitoes, for what these blood-thirsty females lack in size, they make up for in number. One acre of good swamp-land can give rise to a bumper crop of nearly one million mosquitoes during a summer.

Of course, this also creates a difficult control problem. Obviously we can't spray the entire stagnant pools and puddles. We can aid our mosquito abatement groups by the following suggestions—and get bitten less when the invasion starts.

1. Clear your property of all puddles, including water filled cans.
2. Keep a good insecticide for spraying indoor surfaces and space areas.
3. Keep windows and doors well screened.
4. Cover all cracks or openings in your windows or doors.
5. Use an effective insect repellent.

PICTURE-HANGING

The old eye-level rule about hanging pictures does not always apply. In the hallway, yes—but in living rooms, results are more pleasing if pictures are hung about 12 inches above top of furniture. Consider the size of pictures or groupings in relation to the size of furniture over which it is placed. A narrow mirror or narrow picture best suits a narrow table. Over large sofas or mantelpieces a group of six or 12 pictures would be more interesting than one large picture or painting.

If you are grouping a number of matched pictures, make sure that the space between pictures varies slightly from the width of the frames.

WING COMMANDER J.E. WRIGHT, DFC, 37, of Liverpool, N.S., above, has been named as winner of the McKee Trans-Canada trophy for 1954. The trophy is presented annually for meritorious service in advancement of Canadian aviation. W.C. Wright, an RCAF officer serving at Air Force headquarters, won the award for his invention of the R Theta Computer, a navigation device particularly valuable for jet fighter aircraft. His invention is termed "a significant and outstanding contribution to the science of air navigation."

IMMENSE CLOCK

One of the largest timepieces in existence is the huge four-dial clock in the tower of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Building, in New York City. This immense clock covers a height of three stories, and each of its numerals measures four feet. The minute hand, 17 feet in length, weighs 1,000 pounds, while the hour hand of 35 feet weighs 700 pounds. Each jumps a minimum distance of a foot at one move.

This mammoth clock is controlled without any manual operation, its driving power being electricity. A beautiful chime, comprising four bells, is connected with its mechanism. At night hundreds of electric lights behind the dials illuminate the figures and hands, so that the time may be visible for a distance of many miles.

GARDEN NOTES

Healthy, cultivated garden less susceptible to attack

It is discouraging to get a fine garden of flowers and vegetables nicely growing then have bugs or disease make a mess of it. And it is not necessary. True there are a lot of garden pests, but for everyone there is a specific cure. One is advised to consult a good Canadian seed catalogue or government bulletin or spray calendar.

From these sources of information one can learn the proper spray, dust or other method of treatment and for a few cents it is possible to protect every sort of flower, shrub and vegetable. Also in this connection it is well to remember that a healthy, well cultivated garden, clean of weeds, is far less susceptible to attack than the neglected kind.

Keep it up
Much more important than early planting is continuing that job well into June, or even July. One is making a great mistake and robbing the garden of its best blooms and vegetables, if he stops sowing too early.

There is no reason at all why such things as peas, corn, beans, carrots, beets and several other vegetables should not be sown at two to three week intervals right up to the first week in July. By spreading out in this way we spread out the harvest and increase by many times the yield from the average garden. We can further spread out by using early, medium and late varieties. With flowers, too, the seven of bloom can be extended by the same method.

Tender and crisp
The quicker we can get our vegetables grown to eating size, the better. The sooner they will be in the pot after that, so much the better. With certain things like green peas, garden corn, baby carrots and beets, there is all the difference in the world if they are really fresh.

But the main thing is quick growth, especially for those vegetables of which the roots or tops are eaten. Any check in growth, is bound to produce a certain woodiness or at least toughness. The expert gardener makes sure there is no check whatever by

Banner year for waterfowl is indicated

Waterfowl breeding season in western Canada is away to a good start—Mallards, Pintails and Canada Geese are nesting, two weeks ahead of the past two years and on schedule comparable to the banner year of 1952. Migration still in progress with species like Blue-winged Teal and Ruddy just beginning to appear. Surface water conditions generally excellent.

These are highlight excerpts from the first 1955 issue of the Ducks Unlimited "Duckological," prepared by Chief Naturalist Bert W. Cartwright. Revealing that initial return of waterfowl was substantial but somewhat spotty, and believed to be slightly down compared with last year, the report points out that migration is still proceeding and that it is still too early for final conclusions. This will be possible after ground and aerial surveys in mid-May.

Striking a summary, the report states, "Considering excellent surface conditions, an apparently satisfactory return of breeding stock, favorable starting weather and an early beginning to nesting, we have an optimistic outlook for the breeding season in western Canada."

Vanguard flights of waterfowl reached the southern prairies during the last week of March and were present in considerable numbers by the middle of April. Nests with eggs under incubation were being found across the breeding region by the third week of April.

Among notable observations made during early stages of spring migration was that concerning four Whooping Cranes, seen passing over Ingila, Manitoba, on April 28. Specimens of the rare bird were reported seen in the same district last fall.

Do's and Don'ts for cleanup and paintup

Do . . . paint the ceiling before the walls, working across the width of the room rather than the length.

Do . . . remove any old calcimine with a sponge and warm water, since paint cannot be applied over calcimine with good results.

Do . . . run masking tape along the walls, the ceiling line, especially when only the ceiling is to be painted.

Do . . . use some kind of sturdy scaffolding arrangement, such as two stepladders with a strong plank between them.

Do . . . whether using a brush or roller, avoid paint-overloading, which will prevent a smooth job as well as cause dripping.

The Do-Not's
Don't . . . keep the container of paint on the scaffold in front of you or you're liable to knock it over.

Don't . . . neglect to give any patches in a plaster ceiling a coat of sealer before starting to paint.

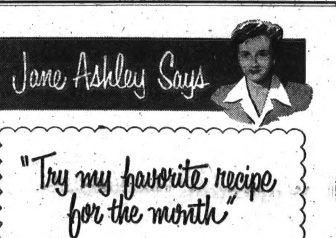

Don't . . . forget that taking the screws out of the ceiling fixtures and dropping it a little will enable you to do a neater job.

Don't . . . think that by being extra careful, you can avoid getting a few drops of paint on furnishings; two or three inexpensive drop cloths should be used to cover anything which can't be moved out of the way.

FAINTING

When a person faints, he should be placed flat on the floor or where his head may be lower than his feet, in order that the flow of blood may return to the brain. A sitting person who has a feeling of faintness can usually offset this by bending forward until the head touches the knees.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY— EASY MONEY

—By VALERIE CULLEN.

VERY quietly he opened the back door of the hardware store, inch by inch, and picked his way over loose boxes and boards that littered the walk to the alley.

It was over now and he was five hundred dollars richer. He could just picture the face of Janie, the pretty clerk with whom he worked, if she saw him now. "Jack Hanson, burglar is a fool's game. You'll get caught in the end. And how could you rob the store of the man for whom you work? How could you rob hard-working people?"

But she was wrong because he wouldn't be caught. Not ambitious Jack. He had planned and waited for this moment, waited until he knew the elderly watchman of the small town was having his usual coffee at one in the small all-night restaurant two blocks away.

Pausing uncertainly for the moment, he scanned the alley now clearly illuminated by moonlight. Forcing the lock off the door and battering the store safe had taken more time than he had anticipated.

His nerves had been unstung by the eerie silence of the store, and each blow he struck the safe seemed to have been magnified a thousand times to his own ears, echoing and resounding in the murky darkness.

Once when a passing car broke the outside stillness, he had almost quit and fled. He steered himself to continue until the job was completed.

He would work for several more months at the store until suspicion had abated and then leave for a larger city. That five hundred dollars would go far in providing him with entertainment in night clubs and race tracks he had always dreamed of. And when that money ran out, there would be other stores.

No more of this small dead town for him. Other people might slave for their everyday bread but not him. In his mind people were divided into two classes — those who worked and those who were smart enough not to have to work.

He had been running around enough, he told himself, as a member of a large, poor family. He had never been given new clothes or books or spending money.

Janie, he told himself, had never known humiliation and want. Well, let her live the hard way; he'd take the easy money.

Moving cautiously out into the moonlight, he glanced at the thick rosemary hedge which enclosed the yard of the large home next to the hardware store. It was an old stately home which had been built at the centre of the town when the town was young 80 years ago. The rest of the block had gradually been built into stores, but the fragrant, beautiful hedge still maintained the home's privacy and dignity, holding off the invaders. The sweet fragrance filled the air.

Janie, he remembered, lived there, and suddenly he hated the lovely scent, the dignified home, as symbols of something he had never had.

He jumped. Someone was coming from the far end of the alley. He had been right when he thought he was taking too long in breaking open the safe. The night watchman had finished his coffee and was coming his way.

For a split second he hesitated. He was still unseen in the shadows. If he ran out into the alley under the light, he would be seen by the watchman. Even if he did succeed in outrunning the policeman, some car might be passing.

Turning, he ran swiftly toward the hedge, crashing through and ignoring the sting of scratches. Ruthlessly he forced through the second hedge, trying to shut out the foolish old man's voice. "Stop! What's going on here?"

Swift pursuing steps came closer as Jack struggled to free himself of the hedge.

Then he was free. He ran swiftly down the block and then another. Behind him he heard shouts, then a pursuing car.

In another moment when the glare of the headlights had pinned him in an unescapeable area of light, Jack was snatching casually, smoking a cigarette.

Brakes screamed and the watchman jumped onto the sidewalk. "Have you seen a man running this way?"

Feigning surprise and interest, Jack replied, "Sorry, but I haven't. What's up?"

"Don't know yet but something is wrong." The watchman came closer, looked hard at Jack.

"You're breathing hard." Jack tried to laugh nonchalantly. "I'm just as excited as you are, pop. That's all. But I'm not your man." He took a long pull on his cigarette.

The watchman waved the smoke away in irritation, sniffed, and then grabbed Jack's arm. Startled, Jack tried to pull away, and as he did so, the driver of the car, sensing trouble, jumped out and rushed over.

The watchman turned to the driver. "Help me hold this man for the police. I've a good idea he just broke into the hardware store."

"You're crazy, pop," Jack protested. "You haven't got a thing on me!"

"No?" the watchman demanded. "But you smell pretty strongly of rosemary. Even got a couple of twigs on your coat. There's plenty of rosemary by the store. You must have been scared to run right through that, and I've a hunch you broke into the hardware store. Better come along quietly now."

THE BELLS OF ST. JOSEPH'S—This crowd at St. Joseph's Oratory listens as the new $3-ball car rolls forth for the first time. The concert was given by carillonist Emile H. Vendette, of Ottawa. The bells here are second only to Niagara and Peace Tower castles.

On The Side : E. V. Darling

No doubt you have heard of dentists extracting their own teeth? Ever hear of a surgeon who operated on himself for appendicitis? Dr. Theodore Herr of Hammond, Germany, did it. With the use of novocaine, he took out his own appendix, an operation which took four and a half hours.

New name for an old job
In Sweden every effort is made to dignify domestic service and make it an attractive activity called "Home Assistant". Maids are unionized. So when a maid works after 7 p.m., she is paid overtime. In addition to regular days off, the Swedish home assistant gets two weeks' vacation with pay. The housewife or home manager is expected to assume the same attitude toward a home assistant as her husband would to an assistant manager or private secretary at his office.

A well-worn word
"Darling" was once a term of endearment among married couples. Now it is just a routine salutation. It is also much used by wives as a preface to sarcasm, correction or criticism. Then the word is further abused by those dizzy dames who call everybody "Darling!"

Unfair to baldheaded men
When a woman makes use of false hair to improve her appearance it is referred to as a transformation, a chignon or some other fancy name. When a man does the same thing what he is wearing is always called a toupee or a wig. Both disagreeable sounding names to a sensitive man. There's no justice in it.

APPETIZING RECIPES

Here's a quick supper snack to please your family. Slices of bread, topped with sauerkraut, are served hot and sizzling with weiners and tomatoes. Canned fruit is a good ending.

1 cup grated sharp process cheese (4 lb.)
dash Worcestershire sauce
1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
6 slices bread
3 medium tomatoes
3 tablespoons butter

Broil tomatoes and weiners 4 inches from source of heat, about 16 minutes. Broil sauerkraut snacks during last 2 or 3 minutes, or until cheese is melted.

Greatest road building year in history for Canada 1955

OTTAWA—Canada is set to embark upon the greatest road building year in its history. The Canadian Good Roads Association, on the basis of a nation-wide survey, has announced that given favorable weather conditions, more than $850 million will be spent this year by road building agencies at three levels of government, on all-time high.

With men and machines poised for the mammoth operation, there are few clouds upon the horizon to worry the planners and contractors. Materials and equipment are in good supply. Manpower is no problem, except that skilled technicians, especially highway engineers, are at a premium.

But remembering last year the roadbuilders are keeping a keen eye on the weather "probe". Last year would have been a record-breaking year for highway construction in Canada, with some $500 million budgeted, but because of many weeks of rain in parts of the country work was curtailed and the actual expenditure fell far short.

The report, issued by C. W. Gilchrist, managing director of the Canadian Good Roads Association, shows that provincial budgets account for $426 million of this year's estimated expenditures. The larger municipalities, towns and cities will spend some $130 million on rural roads and urban streets. Federal government expenditures will amount to $287 million, mainly on the Trans-Canada Highway.

The Army expects to spend $8 million on the Northwest Highway system and it is estimated that some $2 million will be spent by mining companies and the forest industry on development roads. The federal grade crossing contribution may also be increased.

In addition, CGRA points out, there are the road and street expenditures of the smaller municipalities and centres of less than 4,000 population in Ontario and Quebec which are not covered by any official statistics. It is estimated that these expenditures will amount to between $40 and $50 million this year.

The 10 provincial governments have increased their road allocations by $25 million. Of this $47 million is accounted for by Ontario alone.
